Sixty Orphans Among 434 Refugees Go To Palestine

A group of 434 refugees from the Iberian Peninsula and North Africa has sailed for Palestine on the Portuguese freighter, S. S. Guine, through arrangements made possible by the Joint Distribution Committee. Funds derived by the J.D.C. from the nationwide $12,000,000 campaign of the United Jewish Appeal provided for the transportation and other forms of assistance to make possible the emigration of these refugees among whom were included sixty children without parents.

After months of preparation, the 434 men, women and children embarked at Lisbon, Cadiz and Tangier for the voyage through the Mediterranean to Palestine. The S. S. Guine sailed on Tuesday, October 24. More than 300 of the passengers were refugees who had been maintained in Spain and Portugal by the J.D.C. as part of its far-flung overseas relief and rehabilitation program. The remainder who boarded the refugee ship at Tangiers had found temporary haven in that city also through the assistance of this agency. In addition to providing transportation, the representatives of the J.D.C. supplied many of the refugees with clothing suitable for the journey.

The Joint Distribution Committee, in cooperation with the Palestine [illegible] Department, has made arrangements for the reception of the refugees at the port of Haifa. Upon their arrival they will be taken to the Atlit Detention Camp where they will undergo the usual health and security examinations. Following this they will be transported to Pardes Hanna where they will be housed in temporary quarters. Here they will be given intensive training in Hebrew and in various trades and occupations to prepare them for their future life in Palestine.

Nazi Victim In Palestine Hospital Finds Kin In New York

A tortured fugitive from the former Nazi masters of Rumania, now recovering in a Palestine hospital, has found two brothers in New York through the memory of an elderly woman pushcart peddler who sells pretzels with mustard in the neighborhood of Rivington and Forsyth Streets on the lower East Side.

The search in New York started after Nick Abramovitz, fifty years old, wrote a letter in August from the Blumenthal Hospital near Haifa, Palestine, asking the Police Department to try to find his brother, Morris Abramovitz, whom he had last seen in New York in 1918. Morris, he added, then lived at 33 Rivington Street. The letter arrived on Oct. 19.

Enclosed in it was a letter to Morris, reporting that Nick, a former Bucharest hat manufacturer, and his elder son, a medical student, had "escaped" from Rumania, but that Nick's wife and younger son were missing. The Nazis, it added, had burned his hands and given him heavy injections of morphine.

Nick Abramovitz had lived in the United States from 1913 to 1918, when he tried to join the United States Army. Rejected because of a pierced eardrum, he joined a Jewish Legion which served with the Canadian Army in the occupation of Palestine. After the war he returned to Bucharest for a visit, fell in love, married and settled there.

AIR RAID SIRENS WARN PALESTINE JEWS OF TERRORIST ACTION

The Palestine Government issued the following announcement about official raids on terrorists and their accomplices:

"With the concurrence of the commander-in-chief of the British Forces in the Middle East, the Palestine government has decided to use air raid sirens to give public warning of the occurrence of terrorist outrages. The system will be operated by the police. The warning will be sounded in the main town of the area. Police and military personnel will take pre-arranged action, and vehicular traffic within the town planning area will come to an immediate standstill. The warning will also be a signal for increased vigilance by the general public. Any suspicious movement of persons should immediately be reported to the nearest member of the police force or telephoned to police headquarters or to the nearest station. When police action has been completed the siren will sound a continuous wailing note notifying that traffic may move again."

Assassins Of British Minister Said To Be Sternists

The killing of Lord Moyne, British Resident Minister in the Middle East, who was wounded fatally by two men who fired at him with pistols near his house in Cairo, Egypt, on November 6, was generally believed not to have been motivated by personal animosity toward Lord Moyne, but directed against the government he represented.

As Colonial Secretary, Lord Moyne announced in 1941 that the War Office opposed the raising of an army of Jews in Palestine, the United States and other countries because of lack of equipment.

General Sir H. C. T. Paget, British commander in chief in the Middle East, said in a statement: "In the tragic death of Lord Moyne at the hands of Jewish as-

Belgians Saved Jews, Assure Them Welcome Home, Will Restore Property

Assurance of a welcome home to the Jews of Belgium who were forced to flee during the German occupation has been given by M. de Schryver, the Belgian Deputy Prime Minister.

"The Government has repeatedly made it known that expropriated property will be restored, and the first steps in this direction are already being taken," he said. "Where it is a simple question of a house, we are on firm ground. But where businesses have been sold under pressure, there will arise questions as to whether the purchases were made in good faith. We shall make every effort to see that the loss to the original owners is justly amended.

"Those Jews who were here before the Hitler period can be regarded as residents. But during the Hitler refugee period it became clear that we could not hope to assimilate the tens of thousands who were forced to flee, and it was understood that we would permit them to remain in the country while they sought visas and transportation to the Americas and other regions."

It is believed that about six thousands of these refugees from the Nazis still remain, having escaped the Jew-hunt throughout all the years of the war. "Jewish visas" are now being sought by them; otherwise they are subject to arrest by Belgian authorities as German and therefore enemy nationals. Fifty have so far been detained, but some were released upon proof of their identity.

There are no official arrangements, but some measure of protection is given to those doubly Stateless refugees through the issue of a document by the Jewish Defence Committee declaring them Jewish refugees. Most of them

French Jews Demand Full Reparation

The Representative Council of the Jews of France has published a [illegible] programme for the [illegible] of the Jewish community, in collaboration with the Union Nationale des Juifs de France, the Union of French Jewish Youth Organizations and the Committee of Action of French Jewish Youth.

The programme outlined requests: the creation of constitutional guarantees against any attempt to attack the principles of racial and religious equality; the recognition of the equality of Jews with all other citizens; the restitution of all civil, political, and economic rights of Jews by the abrogation of all discriminatory laws; equality of treatment of foreign Jews with non-Jewish emigrants from their countries; the institution of a liberal emigration programme by the State with the support of qualified agencies, without discrimination against Jews; and participation by Jews on a basis of equality with all other citizens in the reconstruction of the country, as well as their reintegration in different strata of post-war social and economic activity.

The Council's programme in regard to Palestine supports the de-

Was First Jew To Be Lord Mayor In 40 Years

Sir Samuel George Joseph, Bart., who was Lord Mayor of London in 1942-43, died in London at the age of 86. The state of his health had for some time, and even at the start of his year of office, not been robust.

The Lord Mayoralty was the peak of a distinguished career in the municipal and business world. Sir Samuel was twice Mayor of St. Marylebone (in 1922-23 and 1929-30). He was elected Alderman of the Portsoken Ward of the City of London in 1933, after serving for two years as a representative of the Ward of Castle Baynard at the Common Council at the Guildhall. He was elected Sheriff in 1933 and was knighted at the end of his Shrieval year. He was a Liveryman of the Cutlers', Lorriners', and Carmen's Companies.

Sir Samuel was co-Chairman and Managing Director of Bovis, Ltd., a well-known firm of building contractors. The Liberal Jewish Synagogue in St. John's Wood Road was built by the firm, whose directors presented the edifice to Montefiore Hall in the congregation.

During the 1914-18 war Sir Samuel was a Captain in the Royal Irish Regiment and acted

CANADA'S VETERANS
Their Post-War Opportunities
For complete information, write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."
Canada has assumed as a minimum obligation to members of the forces that, before their return to civil life, the fullest possible measures shall be taken towards physical fitness, and that pension shall be provided for any permanent disability due to service. Full medical service is provided and veterans' hospitals have been established from coast to coast. Equipment for the most modern types of treatment has been installed, and leading specialists in all branches of medicine and surgery have willingly placed their services at the disposal of veterans.
There is free treatment with allowances to every discharged person for the first year after return to civil life and free treatment with allowances for pensioned conditions is available throughout the pensioner's life.
Those discharged from the forces unable to work and in need of continuing treatment may have their pay and allowances of rank continued for one year, if necessary, and for longer when treatment is still required for a pensionable condition.
PENSIONS
Pension is awardable under three simple and easily understood conditions:
1. When the veteran has served in a theatre of war, death or any permanent disability not due to misconduct is pensionable.
2. (a) When the veteran has served in Canada only, death or disability caused by service is pensionable.
(b) Death or serious disability not due to service may be pensionable if hardship would otherwise result.
JOBS FOR DISABLED
A very wide program of education is being carried on continuously so that veterans who suffer a disability as a result of their war service may have a full and happy future. Many volunteer associations are assisting in this work, while specialized help is available from such organizations as the War Amputations of Canada, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and the Canadian Society for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing.
THE COMMUNITY'S RESPONSIBILITY
This series of advertisements has given, in brief form, an outline of the Canadian re-establishment program for ex-service men and women. The responsibility, however, is not entirely that of Parliament. It can provide legislation and funds but in the final analysis it must be the veterans themselves and the people of Canada who make the program work. The public support so far has been unstinted, but successful administration requires further public support. Understanding and effort by the whole people are needed.
VETERANS' WELFARE OFFICERS ARE STATIONED IN KEY CENTRES THROUGHOUT CANADA. THEY ADVISE AND ASSIST EX-SERVICE PERSONNEL, AND SHOULD BE CONSULTED ON ALL PROBLEMS.
Issued under the authority of Hon. Ian A. Mackenzie, Minister of VETERANS' AFFAIRS

To Set Up Men's Clubs To Greet Returning Fighters

The role the synagogue must play in helping to reabsorb returning service men of the Jewish faith into their home communities and also in promoting interfaith understanding, was stressed at an organizational meeting of a New York branch of the National Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs.

A hundred representatives of Conservative Synagogues throughout the metropolitan area attended the meeting at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Broadway and 122nd Street, to discuss affiliating with the national group, which has 16,000 members all over the U.S. The goal is to set up men's clubs in fifty synagogues following the Conservative doctrine in New York and outlying districts.

As outlined by Rabbi Joel S. Geffen, national adviser to the men's clubs, the organization will seek to further the relationship fostered by chaplains in the armed services with hundreds of thousands of Jewish men, some of whom he said are making their first contact with the synagogue. Further job for the clubs would be community centers to develop a program promoting better understanding among religions.

Dr. Louis Finkelstein, president of the seminary, told the conferees they had a big job to do in educating the American people as to what the Jew really is like.

He said most persons, including Jews themselves, had a false impression. This idea, he declared, had been encouraged by "motion picture producers who, when they portray the Jews on the screen, make him a funny and cringing individual." Some of our great works of literature also are responsible for this impression, he continued, pointing to the treatment of Jews by Shakespeare and Scott.

"We must change the very culture of the world in its conception of the Jew," Dr. Finkelstein asserted. "The opinion of America about the Jews will soon become the world conception of what the Jew really is like. Jew and Christian as well as people from all countries of the world, must learn to understand each other."

Chaplain Aaron Blumenthal, who is stationed at Halloran Hospital on Staten Island, said a point that had been obscured in all discussion of the mustering out problem was that soldiers were different men when they returned home from overseas. These men, he said, want to search deeper into the purpose of life, "and this is a religious matter which must be dealt with by our organized religious forces of America."

N. Y. Garment District Synagogue To Cost $500,000

The membership of the Garment Center Congregation, Inc., at 461 Seventh Avenue, New York, approved plans for the erection of a Jewish community center and a new synagogue to replace the present quarters at the corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street.

The projected building will cost more than $500,000, Max A. Drusin, president, said. Sam Davis, chairman of the building committee, announced that a survey of sites available is now being undertaken by a special committee. Four locations are under consideration.

The synagogue and community center will have facilities for more than 2,000 persons. A drive for funds, to be earmarked for the new building, will begin next month in the garment district.

Composer Of Famous Song Dies

Felix W. Bernard, one of the composers of "Dardanella," the tune that captured the musical ear of the nation in 1919, died in Hollywood. He was forty-seven years old.

Mr. Bernard began composing professionally when he was eighteen, four years before he crashed through with "Dardanella," written with the late Johnny Black and the late Fred Fisher. "Dardanella" has sold more than 6,500,000 records and more than 1,700,000 sheet-music copies.

Writing "Dardanella" resulted in many heartaches for Mr. Bernard. He sued its publishers shortly after the song became a hit, claiming he sold his rights to them for $100 when he was broke, on their representation that "Dardanella" was a poor seller because it was difficult to play. At the time, he charged, 50,000 copies already had been sold. He also alleged that Mr. Black had received $50,000 in royalties.

After much dispute a settlement was made, although its terms were undisclosed, and Mr. Bernard, Mr. Black and Mr. Fisher, then an officer of the publishing firm, Fisher & McCarthy, Inc., renewed their friendship.

He was the composer of twenty-nine tunes, including "Winter Wonderland," from the Ziegfeld Follies of 1934, with Dick Smith, and "Twenty-one Dollars a Month, Once a Year," written in 1941 with Ray Klages.

Born in Brooklyn, he concentrated as a youth on learning how to play the piano and how to tap-dance. He was a successful vaudeville performer, appearing in New York and circuit cities in the early '20s after "Dardanella" was hailed as a hit. His act included simultaneous tap-dancing and piano playing.

Giants' Official Dies

Leo J. Bondy, vice president and treasurers of the New York Giants baseball, died in the New York Hospital. His age was 61.

Born in Pottsville, Pa., on Aug. 4, 1883, Mr. Bondy was brought to New York by his parents at the age of 6 and, as he later insisted, virtually grew up "from the sidewalks," a devoted baseball enthusiast and Giant fan.

Educated in the city's public schools, he studied law at New York University and was admitted to the bar in 1904. Soon after opening his own law firm he met Charles A. Stoneham, broker and turf man, who raced a stable of horses on the metropolitan tracks in addition to holding a controlling interest in the Tropical Park race track in Havana.

Subsequently Mr. Bondy became counsel to Mr. Stoneham and was closely associated with him in all the latter's various enterprises, including his purchase of the New York Giants in 1919 from the John T. Brush estate.

Mr. Bondy became more and more active in the interests of the Giants, attended all major league meetings and by reason of his legal training soon gave valuable assistance in baseball's inner councils.

Upon the death in 1936 of the elder Stoneham, his son, Horace C. Stoneham, was named president, and Mr. Bondy became executor of the Stoneham estate. He was also named vice president of the Giants, a post which had become vacant with the death of McGraw in 1934.

Baseball now commanded nearly all his time and though he continued as head of his law firm at 42 Broadway, with Edgar P. Bonlay as associate, he spent most of his time at the Polo Grounds during the playing season and at the club's business offices on West Forty-second Street during the winter.

Mr. Bondy served for years as a director of The Journal of Commerce.

He leaves a widow, Bessie; his mother, Mrs. Hattie Bondy; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Croft; a sister, Mrs. Blanche B. Hirschhorn, and a brother, Sydney Bondy.

Mrs. Morris Filderman, formerly Miss Bernice Sandra Najer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Najer, Queen Street West, Toronto. Mr. Filderman is the son of David Filderman and the late Mrs. Filderman.

NATURE'S RIVAL
50 Years of Corset Leadership

FOR a long time now, John Bull, Uncle Sam and Johnnie Canuck have been doing business together. Today, more than ever, we are united in a common purpose.

Side by side, Canadians, Americans and Englishmen march along the road that leads to final victory. On the hot sands of North Africa, on the slopes of Sicily and Italy, our men have fought well together . . . given strength one to the other. Now, we look forward to the peace . . . and the ways in which we can preserve it.

Future world security rests to a large extent upon continued co-operation between the British Commonwealth and the United States. Of all nations, Canada is best situated to assure such co-operation. For we, of Canada . . . a major member of the British Commonwealth, have long been a close friend and neighbour of the United States. We know and like them both so well, we are the common meeting-ground for mutual understanding. Thus will Canada help the world to Win the Peace!

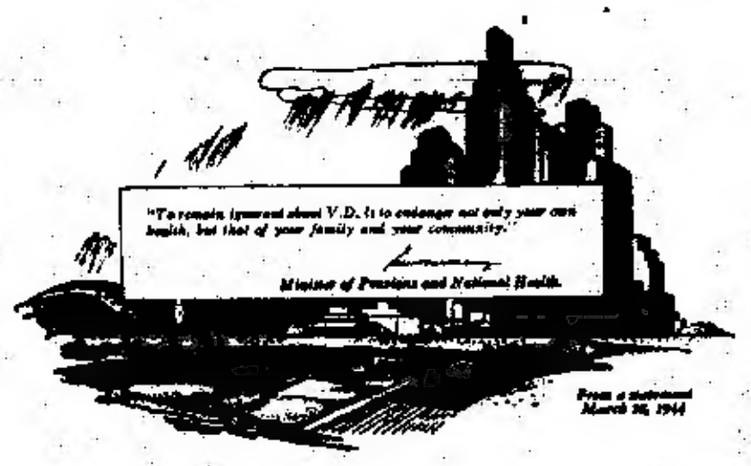
In our hearts is the same concept of freedom!
It is only natural that the flags of Canada, Great Britain and the United States are unfurled together in the cause of freedom. For we have always shared the same concept of freedom . . . shared, too, one of the ardent defenders of the freedom we are fighting for today. He was a Calvert, an enlightened English statesman and founder of colonies off Canada's shore and in Maryland. In contemporality and wisdom the Calvert family were far ahead of their age. In 1649 Calvert's son and successor, carrying on the democratic Calvert tradition, freed a man of his own faith five hundred pounds of tobacco for "vilifying and profaning another's religion." Thus a man's freedom to worship as he pleases was established in the New World by a Calvert.



"To remain ignorant about V.D. is to endanger not only your own health, but that of your family and your community."
Minister of Pensions and National Health.
From a statement March 26, 1944

LET'S be quite frank.

When you read—as you probably did during the past few months—that more than 300,000 people in Canada have syphilis, what was your reaction? Did you say, "That's too bad; something should be done about it", and then turn to the comic page? Chances are you did.

But if that article had told you that Tommy Jones, the lad who used to mow your lawn after school, had syphilis—how would you have felt about it? Or that the young couple who built that cute house in the next block, had just lost a baby through syphilis . . . would that have made you stop and think?

Or, if you suddenly discovered that your Mat - - . . . No? That couldn't happen? But it can. And it does . . . to hundreds of Tommies and Marys every year, right here in Canada. Right in your community. You'll never read articles like that, of course, for these are the personal tragedies that people bear in silence.

So, when you pick up the paper sometime and read, " . . . there were 5,000 new VENEREAL DISEASE cases reported in this province last year . . .", remember! These are not cold figures. They represent 5,000 heart-breaking . . . heart-aching situations.

Yes, VENEREAL DISEASE is a serious problem. It's a problem for parents; for taxpayers; for young people on the threshold of life; for everyone.

VENEREAL DISEASE need never strike if we all do our part. If we know the facts. If we use these facts to advantage. If we don't shrug our shoulders and say, "This couldn't happen to anyone in my family."

You have a duty to your family and the community.

Married 70 Years, Scholar Gives Rules For Longevity

ing by candlelight and holding his wife's hand, "it is easier to believe that life can be extended to seven by means of [illegible] greatest [illegible] verse, belongs to God alone."

He also gave his rules for longevity: "Marry before the age of twenty; eat sparingly; no tobacco smoking, hard drinking or card playing; no long sitting at theatre or movies except at newsreels in the afternoon once a week; to bed at 9:30 p.m. and up at 5:30 a.m.; be an optimist and a humanitarian; above all, be religious and believe in the immortality of the soul."

In a short message read by Rabbi Eisenstein, his grandmother said: "I give thanks to God that Grandpa and I can spend our old age together."

An honored guest at the celebration was Louis Cohen, the only survivor of the guests at the wedding in 1874. Harry Eisenstein and Mrs. Ida Jarmel, a younger brother and sister, were also present, as were all seven children, and seven of eight grandchildren. It was feared that the six great-grandchildren would prove a disruptive influence, so they were kept at home.

Only one flaw marred the occasion for the couple, who live at 15 Fort Washington Avenue. Mr. Eisenstein had chanted many verses from Isaiah on a record, which he thought appropriate, but the building's electric current did not suit the only available current. If his descendants would call upon him, he assured them they could hear his voice, chanting the words of the prophet: "The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day; the father to the children shall make known the truth . . ."

Given Rare Italian Art To U.S. Gallery

Samuel H. Kress, of New York, has given to the United States a large new collection of rare Italian art, including some of the greatest masterpieces of painting and sculpture in America, it was announced at Washington by David K. Finley, director of the National Gallery of Art.

The new Kress gift of more than ninety pieces enriches the National Gallery with many world-famous works.

The present gift is the third large Kress donation to the National Gallery and will augment the Kress collection of Italian paintings presented to the gallery at the time of its opening. In July, 1944, the same donor also gave one of the most notable series of French eighteenth-century paintings ever received by any museum, Mr. Finley said.

The donation will make the National Gallery's collection of Italian art one of the most comprehensive in the world, rivaled only by the four leading European collections in Florence, London, Paris and Berlin.

street was widened. With that address as the only clew, Detective Charles Mayer, of the Missing Persons Bureau, began a search for him.

Seeking old neighborhood residents with long memories, the detective interviewed pushcart peddlers until he came to the woman who remembered an Abramovitz who had had a barber shop at the aforesaid address. The detective then found Morris through his barber's license. He is fifty-seven, lives at 2822 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, and is a partner in a shop at 240 West Thirty-fifth Street.

Morris met Detective Mayer in the other brother, Hiam Alexander Abramovitz, fifty, of 93 Pinehurst Avenue, who, as H. Alexander, operates a dental laboratory at 110 West Forty-second Street. Hiam called his brother-in-law, a resident of Tel Aviv, Palestine, to go to the aid of the brother in Haifa.

Then he wrote a letter to Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine commending the work of the Police Department. Not unsung, but unnamed, was the pretzel woman, whose identity Detective Meyer did not learn.

ASSASSINS

cussing the British Empire lost a great public servant."

It was possible General Paget was referring to members of the Sternists, Jewish extremists in Palestine who recently were criticised severely by him for acts of violence in that country.

The identity of the assailants, both of whom were caught, was not disclosed immediately. An official broadcast over a nationwide Egyptian state network said they were definitely not Egyptians. It was announced earlier that two other arrests had been made.

A mob stripped and almost lynched the assassins as they tried to flee shortly after the attack on Lord Moyne. The crowd pounced on the wounded assassin, beating him and tearing the clothes from his back. Farther down the street another mob caught the second assailant, a dark-haired young man, and was threatening to lynch him when police arrived.

Police disclosed after an investigation that Lord Moynes' assailants had been trailing him since Oct. 27.

Maher Pasha, Egyptian Premier, called a special Cabinet meeting. He proceeded to the police station where the assailants were being questioned by the heads of the Egyptian and British police.

FRENCH JEWS

mands of the Jewish Agency for immediate abolition of the White Paper and free immigration and colonization, and for a national status for the Jews there.

Other demands made by the Council include complete reparation for moral and material damage suffered by the Jews. This would entail the restitution of confiscated property whoever might be the present holder; the reintegration of officials and employees discharged or compelled to cease work, and the re-establishment of Jewish social, cultural, and economic bodies suspended or forbidden under the Jew-laws.

Great problems are facing Paris Jewry. They are impoverished and destitute. There is not a family which has not lost at least one member. They were killed in France or deported to the murder camps of Poland, or, in the case of women, forced to serve in Nazi brothels.

Soup kitchens are serving one meal a day, of bread and soup only, to about 600 persons. And as from two to three hundred are returning daily to Paris from their hideouts in the country, the food problem is acute.

The Chief Rabbi of France, M. Isaye Schwartz, who had been missing since last December, when he succeeded in escaping from the Gestapo, has returned to Lyons. He arrived a few hours before the rededication of the Quai Tilsett Synagogue, and took part in the services, entering the Synagogue in procession with the Acting Chief Rabbi, Jacob Kaplan. Col. Clarence Donnelly, Protestant Chaplain of the Seventh Army, and Major Carl Stone, Senior Jewish Chaplain, also participated in the ceremonies.

Contrary to reports that all Jews who took refuge in Nice during the Italian occupation in order to escape from the Gestapo were trapped by the Nazis and deported information has been received that between 6,000 and 8,000 Jews are alive in the Riviera city. About 80 per cent of them are stated to be foreign refugees.

A provisional Jewish Committee was established in Nice and made a desperately urgent plea to the Marseilles Jewish organization for financial assistance to enable it to provide relief to the destitute. The Marseilles community received information that there are about fifty Jewish families in Aix en Provence, most of whom are urgently in need of support. At the beginning of the German occupation of Southern France about 2,000 Jews lived in Aix.

as Staff Captain, serving in Salonika, Egypt, and France, and being twice mentioned in dispatches. He was Hon. Colonel of the 56th (1st London) Divisional Royal Engineers.

When, in September, 1942, Sir Samuel Joseph was elected Lord Mayor of London, it was exactly 40 years since a Jew had been similarly honoured, says the London Jewish Chronicle. (Sir Marcus Samuel, afterwards Lord Bearsted, was Lord Mayor in 1902-03.)

One of Sir Samuel's first public appearances as Lord Mayor was when he attended the chief service held in London (at the Bevis Marks Synagogue) on the Day of Fasting and Prayer set apart by the Chief Rabbi to mourn the victims of the mass massacres in Nazi lands. He also attended, on that day, the service at the Spitalfields Great Synagogue (the Machzike Hadass).

The Spanish and Portuguese Congregation presented to the newly elected Lord Mayor a silver salver which the congregation had presented to one of his predecessors in office (in 1728) and which had come again into its possession. Sir Samuel, in accepting the gift, declared that it would be his endeavour to justify his selection for his high office and to enhance the reputation of Jewry.

That he succeeded was borne out by the encomiums which marked the completion of his year of office, which was referred to as "one of the most notable terms in the history of the Lord Mayoralty." It was a year in which eight nations came to have their seats in the metropolis. The glories of the Mansion House were restored; and besides being a centre of hospitality for kings, presidents, and ambassadors, it was placed by the Lord Mayor at the disposal of the Allied troops for entertainments which he organised.

The World Jewish Congress Emergency Conference

Not on November 10, as heretofore planned, but on November 26 will commence the conference representing Jews of fifty-eight nations, in Atlantic City under the World Jewish Congress auspices. The delay is caused by the late arrival of delegates from Palestine to America.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, one of the outstanding figures in present day Jewish life, suggested recently in Palestine that the Emergency Conference deal with such a problem as European Jewry. Should we work for its restoration or accept the horrible thought that organized Jewish life on the continent has come to an end?

We believe that if other small peoples in Europe will have regained their freedom with a United Nations victory, that Jewry in Europe will also find its rights restored. Otherwise, there is no hope whatsoever for the European continent. Of course, the problem of the restitution of confiscated Jewish property is one that should engage Jewish leadership right now, and there is the urgent matter of laying claim for the Jewish people generally before the peace conference that is bound to take place.

That claim and its proper formulation should now be prepared by the hands of experts. Why should not Jews have official representation in such international organizations as UNRRA?

Now Jews must gather forces to make the demands of justice before the fora of public opinion. Before the victorious powers we must bring our claims lest we be forgotten. For, all through this horrible war we Jews have been treated as the forgotten ally.

It is good to know that at the Atlantic City Emergency Conference Canada will be represented by a splendid delegation; that from Palestine the Vaad Leumi is sending eight delegates representing United Palestine Jewry. The South American countries are for the most part participating. Leading European countries are for the most part participating. Leading European [redacted] will attend part [redacted] will bring the emergency conference prove to be a fruitful [redacted] ability until peace.

It was our privilege to have been present at the founding of the World Jewish Congress in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1936. Much has happened in the world since that memorable August of 1936 in Geneva when we were elected as a member of the World Congress Administrative Committee. We are more convinced now than ever of the need for world Jewry of such an organization as a World Congress that will speak for United Israel. The Atlantic City Emergency Conference should enable the World Congress leaders to commence anew to build and to rebuild organized Jewish life from an international point of view.

Palestine And Soviet Russia

Twenty-seven years ago almost simultaneously there occurred two historic events which we believe to be the only worthwhile achievements of World War I. On November 2, 1917 there was given to world Jewry the Balfour Declaration with the pledge by Britain that Palestine would become the national Jewish home. On November 7, 1917, was born the Union of Soviet Republics in that vast land known as Russia.

Who can doubt the Russian experiment at this late date? When, in 1928, after visiting Russia, we asked people of the Americas to exercise a sympathetic attitude to the new civilization that was in the making in Russia, people for the most part were inhospitable to our request and even indicated open hostility to the suggestion. But Soviet Russia grew in strength and power. Thus, in 1936, when we revisited the land, we were not disappointed in our conclusions on our first pilgrimage.

What is the secret which has made Russia the mighty power that it now is counted among the three great nations of the world? The secret is a moral one. Russia's great interest is the common man. Hence the war it wages against the Nazis is for the Russians a peoples' war.

And who can deny that were it not for the Russian Red Army it might have taken years for the democracies to make a dent in the mighty Nazi war machine? It is certainly good that among the United Nations Russia has come to take her place. She is the hope for the building of a new world order.

Palestine, the Jewish commonwealth in the making, has demonstrated that the Jew has much yet to give to society. The dozens of Jewish colonies, where the cooperative form of living prevails, can serve as a pattern for the cooperative society which must embrace the whole world. It is most pitiful that this historic land of the Jew is now strangled in its further growth by the White Paper of 1939 which came into effect last March.

The doors of Palestine are thus for the most part closed to Jewish immigration. The Jewish national home, guaranteed by fifty-two nations, then is nullified. Hence, the demand now that, as a matter of British honor, the Balfour Pledge should be kept and Palestine, with a United Nations victory, be declared the democratic Jewish commonwealth. Surely, the pacification of the world will never be realized unless justice be meted out to the Jew everywhere and Jewish nationhood in Eretz Israel be restored.

We admire the achievements of Russia and Palestine during these past twenty-seven years. These lands have shown vision to a world weary and broken. These have given intimations of new ideologies which are bound to advance the cause of world community life.

What a pity it is that thus far Russia has not expressed an official attitude to the Jewish Palestine state. Zionists await with much hope that the Soviet Union will unite its efforts with that of the United States and Great Britain in guaranteeing Palestine as the Jewish commonwealth, a unit among the democracies of the new world order.

"Sometimes when people consult me,
I tell them without reserve
That for what is said not to be true,
I might have had to suffer."

The plight of the Jews in Rumania is very bad, for the authorities there are standing in the way of help to thousands who escaped extermination and survived internment in camps, even when this help is of the temporary makeshift kind. This fact was underlined by the request of Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, that United States Secretary Cordell Hull do something toward removing discriminations and restoring rights and possessions by demanding that Rumania live up to Armistice terms calling for the repeal of discriminatory legislation.

Although the armistice with Rumania was concluded on September 12 and the Allied Control Commission in Bucharest is there to see that the Rumanians do as they have promised, for once, they keep on playing the old and gruesome game they know best when it comes to the Jews. The Jews were robbed of property. It has not been restored. Tens of thousands, natives and refugees, are threatened by starvation or freezing and the approach of cold weather complicates the situation for leaders and relief organizations. To top it off, the Government authorities don't want to see the Jews helped.

Whereas, each penniless refugee in Rumania has been getting eight dollars a month for relief, and his condition is so precarious that it was necessary to ask the Joint Distribution Committee for a single grant of fifty dollars to clothe him for the winter, the Rumanian Government would rather have the Jew appear to be a vagrant, shivering and unkempt, a public nuisance bordering on the pariah, and a loathesome specimen inspiring hatred and revilement. Jews whose livelihood has been ruined by thuggery crowd the waiting rooms of charity organizations and idle about the doors of immigration offices, wan and hungry-looking, chilled with the fear that they will be approached for non-existent passports, papers, and what not.

Thousands of orphaned children roam about, homeless, nameless, and pitiless but spurred on by the will to live on any terms. If Rumania wants degradation for these children so that they can be cited as outcasts the country can have it by placing in their path present obstructions to help that world Jewries would willingly give. There is nothing more effective than abandonment for pushing children down so low in the social scale that they appear to be no more than dregs, impossible of rehabilitation.

The Rumanians have probably been the worst of all to the Jews. They have shot down Jews, like rabbits, for the fun of it and, although other satellite countries may have disappointed the Nazis in the savagery of their anti-Semitism, Rumania may well rate a special chapter in the blood-stained book of record. While other countries provide and will continue to reveal endless accounts of how Jews were saved from murder by the goodness of heart of their Christian neighbors, the most that can be said for Rumania is that its proximity to the war zone to Turkey made possible the escape of some of the Jews from the treachery and brutality of their own people.

Recourse to chicanery, a low and clumsy cunning and an utter cynicism, whichever works best at the time, characterize an old Rumanian custom. Within the past couple of months Rumania did away with all the Nazi anti-Jewish laws. The "liberal" constitution, abolished in 1938, was restored, and the racial laws which had been passed in partnership with Germany were no more. Jews who had been dismissed from State offices were asked to return. The Government would pay them half of the salaries which they had lost, when the war was over. Synagogues which had been closed by the Fascists were opened, also Zionist and other offices resumed their activities. It was even announced that Jewish refugees from Germany and Hungary would not be interned as was the case with the non-Jews from those countries.

Now it appears that all this nice, fine freedom is no more real than "a painted ship on a painted ocean." Rumania is now accused of harboring "a state of affairs incompatible with the demands of humanity and with commitments to and by the United States."

If the United Nations Allied Control Commission in Bucharest is able to hold Rumania strictly to Article 6 and the Annex to Article 2 of the Rumanian armistice which provide that the Rumanian authorities "should be given no further excuse to continue their Nazi practices", it will make history.

Rumania's past is dotted with the wreckage of Articles which that shifty country promised to enforce and deliberately sabotaged because it never had any intention of keeping a pledge in the first place. For decades Jews born in Rumania have been "native aliens not under protection of a foreign power" because the common people have been so exploited that the exploiters have had to have a scapegoat on which to turn wrath from themselves onto "foreigners", and this policy has continued because Rumanian authorities were too slippery for the European powers to hold to Articles of agreement. They were thus able to get away with a political hypocrisy which has become classical.

Decades of Jewish persecution went by because the great powers did not want to break with a rich country over the Jewish question. The crux of that Jewish question is the existence of "internal difficulties", that is the dissatisfaction of those who suffer from economic inequalities and must be kept ignorant and brutal so that they will vent their resentment on the defenseless instead of knowing and punishing the actual traducers of the people.

It is obvious that Rumania is up to its old tricks. It may be that the Allied Control Commission will be able to supervise fulfillment of the new Armistice terms, but it's doubtful. As Judge Proskauer said in the letter to Mr. Hull: "It is clear that the Rumanians have undergone no real change of heart." f.f.c.

INVEST IN VICTORY

Rumanian Tragedy

The New York Times says:

This war will have been fought in vain if in its wake the old evils are allowed again to take root. A recent dispatch to this newspaper from its Near East correspondent, Joseph M. Levy, says that in Rumania the cessation of fighting has brought little peace and restored few rights to the Jewish citizens of that unhappy Balkan country. Deprived of their jobs and their homes and thrown in concentration camps by the Antonescu regime, they are freed by Allied action, only to find both their homes and their jobs held by "Aryans" whom the present Government of Rumania has taken no action to dispossess. Many will starve or freeze to death this winter, Mr. Levy says, unless the Allied Governments take some action, either direct or through pressure on the Rumanian Government, to restore to the Rumanian Jews not only their rights but their property, and to provide for them until that is done. Such action is only simple justice for the 270,000 who have suffered so much for no other reason than that they were Jews.

BELGIANS

people had multiple sets of false identity cards and now have difficulty in proving their real identity. They are known, however, to the Committee, and the Belgian authorities are disposed to recognize the "Jewish visa."

Ninety per cent of Belgian Jews who evaded arrest and deportation by the Nazis were actively connected with the "White Army," the name given to the Belgian forces of resistance.

Of the Jews who managed to escape from Belgium to Allied countries, a very large proportion joined the armed forces. Serving with the first Belgian brigade to return and fight for the liberation of its native soil were 300 Jews.

Before the war there were between 80,000 and 100,000 Jews in the country. Only ten per cent of these belonged to families which had been in Belgium for more than 30 years. The newcomers, mainly from Poland, were followed by about 15,000 Jewish refugees from Nazi persecution.

This large proportion of alien Jews rendered the Belgian Government's task of protecting and relieving the Jews vastly more difficult. They were aided, however, by the overwhelmingly anti-Nazi sentiments of the Belgian people. It became a patriotic act to shield Jews.

"Every Jew saved was saved by a Belgian, and for every Jew saved there was at least one Belgian in danger. Many were caught, and suffered for the help they gave; but they never stopped helping," Professor Chaim Perelman, chief of the underground Jewish Defense Committee, has stated.

When the Germans invaded Belgium, nearly all the Jewish population tried to flee. About half succeeded. Some reached America; the majority got to the South of France where they were safe for a few years, only to find themselves again trapped when the Germans occupied the whole of France.

About 40,000 were caught in the Pas de Calais area, and cut off. They made their way back home, and faced the German occupation.

In 1941 the Germans forced the Jews to join the Nazi organized Association des Juifs de Belgique. The Senior Jewish Chaplain of the Belgian Army, Rabbi S. Ullmann, was made Grand Rabbin and placed at the head of the Association. Community leaders were drugooned into service on the board; and in 1942 they were tricked into signing a letter to the Jews of Belgium, instructing them to go to a "work camp" at Malines, and informing them that failure to comply would bring disaster to their entire people. As a result, 10,000 Jews reported to the concentration camp "of their own volition," finding their own means of transport.

After the first month, however, the opposition crystallized, and from then on it was so well organized that it took the Germans more than two years to collect the next 15,000 people in Malines. At the end of that first month the messenger who brought the Gestapo the lists of names and addresses for the "invitations" to the concentration camp was shot. The Underground Jewish Resistance was in action!

During the following two years it hid 10,000 Jews and 5,000 children, prepared false papers, and secured food cards for them. By April, 1943, it was so well organized as to stage an attack upon the 20th transport of deportees from Malines, liberating 600 from the death train. Not only Jews were helped by this Committee. As an integral part of the Front de l'Independance, the underground Jewish movement undertook the preparation of 25,000 false identity cards for Belgians in the Chartered region alone.

Representatives of all Jewish groups, including General Zionists, the Poale Zion, the Bund, the Communists, and the religious groups, worked on the Committee. At the same time most Jews, as individuals, became members of Belgian resistance units.

The underground Committee informed, in October, 1943, into the official German-directed Association for the Jews; Prof. Perelman, who was a member of the Faculty of Philosophy at Brussels University, was ordered to work at the Association and became head of its Social Service branch. He was thus able to utilize funds and food supplied through official channels, and to divert them through underground channels for the use of Jews in hiding.

In France, Jews, no matter how old, were deported. But in Belgium, the Committee managed, through pressure by the Belgian authorities, to secure a dispensation for those over 65. By the autumn of 1943 a home for the aged was set up in Brussels, and all Jews over 65 who were arrested were detained there. Over 500 were living in this home at the time of liberation.

Professor Perelman and his movement were able to save hundreds of children, many of these orphans of deported Jews. These orphans were collected and placed in a home maintained by the Association, the underground knew when the Gestapo planned to deport groups of children, and so could spirit them away in advance, and hide them. The Professor's wife was most active in this work, as well as in finding employment as servants in non-Jewish households for Jewish women who could thus be hidden.

The Jews received powerful aid from Catholics. Père Brunot, of the Abbé de Mont Cesare in Louvain, and Père André, of Namur, took constant risks in order to save the lives of Jewish children. Many Belgian civil agencies also helped, among them, the Belgian Children's Institute, directed by Mlle. Yvonne Nevejan.

During the period of its activity the Committee, responsible for the lives of [illegible] Jews, [illegible] Belgium, [illegible] Underground Distribution Committee, Switzerland, through [illegible] channels. Of the responsible, some was borrowed from banks and institutions, while 14,000,000 francs was received from the Belgian Government.

Prof. Perelman is certain that Germany's four-year propaganda occupation of the European mind has left widespread anti-Semitism where none existed before.

"Anti-Semitism is now the centre of anti-democratic propaganda all over the world," he said. "You cannot preach Fascism without being interned; you cannot attack the Allies without being interned; but you can speak freely against the Jews. So the whole of internal Fascist propaganda is being directed through the channels of anti-Semitism. This gives them an opening for post-war attempts to gain in ideology what they lose on the battlefield. I believe the only way to combat anti-Semitism is by an international effort, done by international law."

SIXTY ORPHANS

During the past year more than 8,000 Jewish refugees, most of them from the Balkans, were transported to Palestine by the J.D.C. with the cooperation of the President's War Refugee Board and the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

When refugees arrive in Palestine, they are provided with relief and maintenance assistance, and are aided in their economic integration by the agencies comprising the United Palestine Appeal.

Early this year the J.D.C. chartered another Portuguese vessel, the S.S. Nyassa to bring 900 refugees from the Iberian Peninsula and North Africa to Palestine. The Nyassa was the first neutral ship to make a trans-Mediterranean voyage since Italy entered the war in 1940.

In commenting on the sailing of the S. S. Guine, the J.D.C. said: "The Nyassa conveyed to Palestine 748 Jewish men, women and children, refugees from Hitler's Europe, whom we had been able to rescue and place in temporary havens in Neutral countries. This was early this year. Today they are secure in their new homeland. The Guine voyagers, too, will be able to settle in Palestine with their families, safe and free from persecution."

Due to a more stringent system of control, most stable food conditions are cheaper in Palestine at present than in Egypt, Transjordan, Syria and Lebanon which before the war had a lower level of prices.
